FAVORITE POEM OF THE LATE

BISHOP B. WISTAR MORRIS

IN MEMORIAM.

By BISHOP ARTHUR CLEVELAND COXE.

I never can see a churchyard old,
With its mossy stones and mounds,
And green trees weeping the unforgot
That rest in its hallowed bounds;
I never can see the old churchyard
But I breathe to God a prayer
That, sleep as I may in this fevered life,
I may rest when I slumber there.

Our mother, the earth, hath a cradle-bed
Where she gathereth sire and son,
And the old world's fathers are pillowed there.
Her children, every one.
And her cradle it hath a dismal name,
When riseth the banquet's din,
And pale is the cheek at dance or wine
If a song of its sleep break in.

But our mother, the church, hath a gentle nest,
Where the Lord's dear children lie,
And its name is sweet to a Christian ear
As a motherly lullaby.
Oh, the green churchyard, the green churchyard,
Is the couch she spreads for all;
And she layeth the cottager's baby there
With the lord of the tap'stry hall.

Our mother, the church, hath never a child
To honor before the rest,
But she singeth the same for mighty kings
And the veriest babe on her breast;
And the bishop goes down to his narrow bed
As the ploughman's child is laid,
And alike she blesseth the dark-browed serf
And the chief in his robe arrayed.
